Whirlwind CETA tour

Leaders get a first-hand view of programs

By TERRY DAVENPORT
Times Staff Writer

A whirlwind tour of five North County facilities funded under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act left those in charge of the program breathless but pleased Thursday.

"I think after seeing this, we can ask more pertinent questions when these people come to meetings asking for money," said Alice Gonzales, chairwoman of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Advisory Council.

As an example, she noted that one subcontractor the group visited that day, Opportunities Industrialization Center West, spent $10,000 per participant last year.

"Now I would know enough to ask, how come you spent that much when the participants were only here seven weeks?" she said.

The job of CETAC is to advise the county Board of Supervisors on spending San Mateo County's federal CETA money, which amounts to $16 million in 1978-79. The purpose of the CETA program is to provide jobs and job training for the hardcore unemployed.

Mrs. Gonzales was one of several CETAC members who asked the county CETA staff to show them CETA programs in action. Seven of the 10 persons presently serving on CETAC and most of the county CETA staff are scheduled to take one or more of the three CETA tours planned this month in different parts of the county.

Al Kirkland, Everlyn Wallace, Robert Feldscher and Mrs. Gonzales, all of CETAC, took the Thursday North County tour, along with 13 county CETA employees.

The first stop was one of the county's four adult employment and training units for CETA programs, located in the Bay Area Urban League's offices at 1045 Airport Blvd., South San Francisco.

The organization is operating the program under a 1978-79 CETA subcontract of $390,000.

Spruiell White, director of economic development for the league, told the group his workers are screening CETA applicants more carefully than in the past. He said only one out of every seven applicants is enrolled in a CETA activity now, compared to one out of three last year.

White said his organization has placed, to date, 73 out of the 109 enrollees in CETA programs.

Placing CETA participants is not easy, according to White. But he expects difficulties, he said, because CETA is intended to help people who can't find jobs on their own.

"If they didn't face barriers, we would not be carrying out the intent of the legislation," he said.

The group saw one of the county's youth screening centers on its second stop: the Youth Employment

GETTING READY

Students in Ave Evenich's Community Environmental Education Program at Serramonte High School in Daly City do some last-minute planning, in top photo, for their 54-day trip across the United States. Twenty-six youths and nine adults plan to leave Thursday morning on the once-in-lifetime adventure. The students will get full credit while they travel. In bottom photo, Joann Jurland checks supplies in the group's chuck wagon, built by students especially for the trip. They plan to trim expenses by doing a lot of their own cooking and staying with families of 4-H Club members.

SamTrans readies for cemetery tour

San Mateo County Transit District buses will provide easy mobility for the April 28 tour of the Colma cemeteries, sponsored by the North San Mateo County League of Women Voters.

Called "Stepping Stones to History," the tour basically is self-guided but with narrators at various points to explain the roles of the historical figures interred at the cemeteries.

Scheduled from 1 to 5 p.m., tour admission is $6 each, with proceeds supporting the League's voter information services.

Transportation through the cemeteries all afternoon on SamTrans is provided for a single fare of 25 cents.

The guides will explain the roles of such well-known names as Sharon, Crocker, Phelan, Coleman, Spreckels, Flood, Fair, Hearst, and many others whose final resting places are found beneath Colma monuments.

Tour tickets are available until April 25 from LWV Tickets, P.O. Box 807, Daly City 94015. Ticket purchasers must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Man held in death of woman

Brisbane and Daly City police officers Sunday arrested a 22-year-old San Francisco man, charging him with murdering a 19-year-old Daly City woman.

The body of the young woman, Kristy Roza, whose address was not released by police, was discovered in the bushes near Candlestick Park at about midnight Friday.

The man charged in her death, Craig Johnson, 100 Edinburg St., San Francisco, is the same man who reported finding the body to police.

Police said evidence linking Johnson and the victim has been established, although a possible motive for the alleged murder is unknown at this time.

Miss Roza had been reported as missing at about 7 p.m. last Thursday. Officers said there are indications she died within two hours after she was last seen.

Police said it appeared the body had been in the bushes on the west side access road adjacent to the southbound lane of Interstate 101 near Candlestick Park for at least 24 hours prior to its discovery.

That area is within Brisbane's jurisdiction.

Johnson is employed as a security guard for Mark 2 Security Service. He had been guarding the Sunset Scavenger Co. property on Tunnel Road, Brisbane, when he reported finding the body, police said.

Capt. John Majka of the Brisbane Police Department and Lt. Tom Culley of the Daly City Police Department made the arrest Sunday at Johnson's San Francisco residence.

The location of the alleged slaying has not yet been established. Officers speculated, though, that the body may have been moved to the Brisbane site after the killing.

Jane Powell recall petition drive on in Jeff HS district

A group of parents has begun circulating petitions in Daly City and Pacifica aimed at recalling Trustee Jane Powell from the Jefferson Union High School District.

Called the Parents Action Committee for Education (PACE), the group must collect 8,428 valid signatures on the petitions by July 13 to force a recall election.

County Clerk Marvin Church estimates the cost of a recall election at $27,000 to $35,000.

Recall proponents have accused Mrs. Powell of making staff and program reductions and speaking inaudibly at public meetings, even when requested to speak louder.

The petition notes that Mrs. Powell made motions approving the hiring of an associate superintendent of education "against the direct wishes of voters as shown in Proposition 13," as well as other motions to cut nurses, work experience coordinators, attendance supervisors, activity directors, counselors and the district's Regional Occupational Program and driving training courses. (The board voted unanimously on nearly all of those motions.)

The group also points out that Mrs. Powell moved to reduce the physical education requirement for students "against the pleas of the superintendent, parents, students and teachers for further study."

Maxine Gonsalves of Pacifica, chairman of PACE, said its latest concern is the board's decision to give Superintendent Floyd Gonella a $6,540 pay boost to $45,740.

"We're disappointed that the board and Jane Powell are giving out raises at the same time they're cutting programs," she said.

Mrs. Powell, who has been a JUHSD trustee 10 years, did not exercise her right to have her written reply to the charges included with the charges printed on the recall petitions.

$30,000 fire in DC residence

A fire that started in an upstairs bedroom caused an estimated $20,000 damage to the structure and $10,000 to the contents of a home at 4305 Callan Blvd. at about 4:45 p.m. Monday, according to Daly City firemen.

Tom Callan rites today

Thomas Callan

A concelebrated Mass of Christian Burial will be offered at 11 a.m. today at Holy Angels Church in Colma for Thomas Callan Sr., 82, of Colma.

Callan, a former member of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors, died at his home on Saturday. Callan served on the county board from 1952 to 1960. He was succeeded by James Fitzgerald. One of the most colorful politicians in the county's history, Callan served as a member of the Jefferson Union High School District board of trustees.

Callan, a major Peninsula landowner, owned large parcels of real estate in South San Francisco, San Gregorio and other parts of the county. He was active in real estate transactions throughout California and raised cattle and hogs in San Gregorio.

He was active in the San Mateo County Historical Society and other pioneer groups. A Times editorial urging his re-election in 1960 said "It is doubtful that anyone in the county knows more about this area acre-by-acre and lot-by-lot than Mr. Callan."

A native of Colma, he was a charter president of the El Carmelo Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West. He was a member of the Holy Name Society of Holy Angels Church, Knights of Columbus Marian Council, El Retiro, the San Mateo Elks Club and the Redmen.

Callan is survived by: two sons, Michael of Atherton and Thomas Jr. of Hillsborough; three daughters, Mary McDonald of San Francisco, Martha Bishop of Oregon and Helen Carey of Atherton; 21 grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren.

A rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Holy Angels Church.

Merchants dislike parking cut

A traffic intersection and a parking lot in northern Daly City were the center of attention at a City Council study session Monday night.

Members of the Mission Merchants Association said they were displeased with the California Department of Transportation's request that the city eliminate approximately 30 parking spaces along Mission Street and six spaces on Westlake and Eastlake avenues in preparation for a traffic signal at that intersection.

The organization has been pressuring the city and state to add a signal there because of numerous injuries pedestrians have suffered while attempting to cross Mission Street.

The council directed the city staff to study the parking situation with CalTrans.

Council members were less keen about Planning Commissioner Rick Silver's request, on behalf of the commission, that the city attempt to block the Bay Area Rapid Transit District's plans to prevent San Mateo County residents from using a new parking lot on the Daly City-San Francisco border near the BART station.

Referring to the BART Board of Directors' threat last week to reduce BART's service to Daly City by two-thirds if it can't build a turnaround track in Daly City, Council-

Program's offices at 405 Grand Ave., South San Francisco.

Program Coordinator Joan Venturino explained that YEP serves youths 16 to 21 years old who are San Mateo County residents and from low-income families by placing them in out-of-school and in-school programs.

"We are trying very hard to get out to youths. Normally there are lots of them here in the office. Maybe they heard there were 20 people in the area," she said with a nervous laugh.

With its funding of about $310,000 this year, the YEP office expects to provide training for about 75 high school juniors and seniors and another 75 youths out of school.

Out-of-school placements are made directly by the office, but YEP works with school work experience counselors to place the other youngsters.

And YEP also is responsible for coordinating the 1979 summer work experience program for disadvantaged youths in the county.

Youngsters were busy hammering away on carpentry projects at the next stop, the Neighborhood Services Center at 291 Hillside Blvd. in South San Francico.

The Youth Community Conservation and Improvement Project already had given them some training in painting, plumbing and electrical work. On the morning of the tour, many of the same youths who didn't even know what carpentry tools looked like two weeks before were using them to build coffee tables and cabinets.

This project is funded under a $70,000 CETA subcontract. In addition, it received $15,000 under the federal Housing and Community Development Act to buy supplies for community service projects.

The tour group made a detour to see one recently completed project. Using less than $50 of the HCDA funds, five youths had painted a porch, reinforced the front steps, fixed a fence and removed weeds from a senior citizen's house on Grand Avenue in South San Francisco.

The last stop was Opportunities Industrialization Center West in Martin School in South San Francisco (which was closed last year), next door to the Neighborhood Services Center.

Six people were laboring over lessons in textbooks as part of the Basic Skills Brush-Up program. Instructor Thomas Goodwin explained that each one was working toward different vocational objectives using, for the most part, self-instructional materials.

The purpose of the $43,565 program is to give individuals "pre-vocational" training, particularly in English and math, that will enable them to enroll in vocational programs.

Goodwin said 34 people have completed the course since the CETA fiscal year began in October.

Working with people of different ages, Goodwin said he's found that youths are less motivated than adults.

"I think it's because adults have had more experiences out in the world, more experiences of not being able to move ahead in jobs because they lack certain skills," he noted.

In adjacent classrooms, a dozen people were working on typewriters and 10-key adding machines as part of OICW's clerical training program, funded at $49,641 this year.

Instructor Don Goins said he emphasizes neatness and basic skills in the beginning. When the enrollees can type 45 words per minute, they are transferred into the advanced clerical program for more specialized training.

A total of 21 persons currently are enrolled in the program, two of them men. Since October, when the program began, six others have completed the training and been placed in jobs. One had to quit because of a family emergency.

Goins is concerned about the many people coming into the program who have problems using the English language. He has devised what he calls a "moonlight program" to teach them grammar and spelling through homework assignments done on their own time.

At the end of the tour, as the tired group piled into the bus for the trip back to Redwood City, a number of county CETA staff members commented on how refreshing it was to get outside the office and see the CETA programs in action.

The CETAC members were equally ebullient.

"It's so worthwhile to see what's happening and the people involved. I think the most interesting part was the carpentry work," said CETAC member Kirkland.

He added with a chuckle, "I'd love to have one of those tool kits."

FIRST CARPENTRY PROJECT

Kim Coe, 19, of Pacifica, and Art Hornbrook, 20, of Belmont were busy making a stereo cabinet as part of their training in the Youth Conservation Community Improvement Program in South San Francisco. It was their first attempt at carpentry.

NOT EASY

Spruiell White, director of the Bay Area Urban League's economic development department, said he doesn't expect his job of placing CETA applicants to be easy because CETA is designed to help people who have difficulty finding jobs through the normal channels.

DOING DOUBLE GOOD

Barry Sovel, youth project coordinator of the Youth Conservation Community Improvement Program at the Neighborhood Services Center in South San Francisco, explained that youths learn about trades in the program at the same time they repair senior citizens' homes.

Council

man William Schumacher said, "I feel the parking lot is a minor thing in the big picture. I don't want to get into being petty."

Mayor Victor Kyriakis told Silver that it is up to the council to take any further steps. He implied that the council probably won't pursue the matter.

The council also reviewed items that will be discussed in depth at the next council meeting on April 23, including:

• The History, Arts and Science Commission has recommended renaming Westlake Library, Westlake Park or Westlake School after the late developer of Westlake, Henry Doegler.

• Paul and Liza Allen protested William Ropalidis' proposal to build a duplex in a single-family residential district located at 275 Frankfort St.

The Planning Commission recommends granting a variance because Ropalidis would, in effect, be building the structure on two lots.

• Assistant City Manager Ray Letsinger proposed raising the salary range for the position of water superintendent from $1,727-1,990 per month to $1,853-2,134 per month in order to attract more applicants

• The Parks and Recreation Commission recommended that the council hire an engineer to work on the development of Lincoln Park.

• The council will consider again a proposal to have abbreviated minutes.

The plan previously failed on a tie vote.

• The council learned that the Gellert Park Clubhouse should be completed by May 4.

Recall

"To make a formal reply would be to say I did something wrong. There's no reason to reply. I haven't done anything wrong," Mrs. Powell said Monday.

She promised to reply "at the proper time," saying, "Only I can decide the proper time. It's not right now. It won't be this week."

A group called the Support Committee of Responsible Education (SCORE), has rallied to her side.

Chairman Frank Beller, a Daly City resident, said the organization's goal is to fight the recall move against Mrs. Powell: "We want to recognize Mrs. Powell's generous giving of time to community affairs, her sound judgment and her sincere dedication to the parents and children of this area."

Beller said his committee analyzed the stated recall reasons and found them to be based on misinformation and distorted facts.

"We resent the use of tax money for the purpose of a recall based on illogical charges. Jane Powell has long served her community in an able manner. SCORE believes voters should have the true facts which would lead to a total rejection of the recall attempt and an understanding of the individuals behind that attempt," he said.

The persons who signed the recall petition charges against Mrs. Powell are Nancy Markee and Donald Sims of Pacifica and Esther Talaveras and Edna Boltman of Daly City.

Other SCORE officers besides Beller are Pat Hansen, Tom Nuris and Carlyle D. Hillsman, all of Daly City.

Memorial to Asian immigrants planned

A memorial tribute to the more than 50,000 Asian immigrants who passed through the Angel Island Immigration Station will be April 28 at the site of the station on San Francisco Bay.

Some 200 Asian-Americans, most of them former detainees at the immigration station which operated between 1910 and 1940, will gather for an historical commemoration of those who spent many long and arduous days at the facility before being either admitted to the United States — or denied entry.

The immigration station will be restored and preserved by the Asian-American community of San Francisco, with the help of the California Department of Parks and Recreation, state-appropriated funds and private business.

Legislation introduced by state Sen. John Foran, D-San Francisco/San Mateo County, appropriates $250,000 for the restoration project.

The commemorative service on April 28 will be the first step in the restoration of the site.

An 8-foot, 6,000-pound granite monument was conceived and donated by Trader Vic Bergeron as a tribute to the thousands of Asians who had undergone the Angel Island experience. Bergeron has employed many of Asians in his restaurants.

Between 1910 and 1940, thousands of Chinese, Japanese and Korean would-be immigrants were processed through the Angel Island station.

They were forced to undergo intensive interrogation, usually taking two or three days, in an attempt by immigration authorities to block the use of false papers. The immigrants, in turn, lashed out against what they considered to be discriminatory laws to curtail the Asian immigration.

Substandard living conditions and the inequities of the situation provoked protests and even riots at the site.

In 1940, a fire burned down the station's administration building and the station was transferred to San Francisco.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUTH

Joan Venturino, program coordinator of the Youth Employment Program's office in South San Francisco, enrolls San Mateo County youths aged 16 to 21 in CETA-funded training programs.

They will be arraigned in Superior Court at 9 am. May 1.

• Steve Phillips, 25, of Daly City, has been held to answer to an arson charge in Superior Court. He will be arraigned at 9 a.m. May 1.

He was charged with allegedly throwing a fire bomb into the home of ex-girlfriend Marie Bettencourt, 21, of Daly City, while she was standing in the kitchen.

• Alvin Boone, 31, of Daly City, pleaded guilty last week to misdemeanor manslaughter charges. He was involved in a head-on collision in which two other people riding in another car were killed last January.

$5.9 million contract let

The contract for a new $5.9 million surgical facility at Peninsula Hospital in Burlingame has been awarded to Williams & Burrows of Belmont, according to hospital administrator Charles H. Mason Jr.

The new facilities, expected to take two years to complete, will include a new reinforced concrete two-story addition of 20,000 square feet at the southwest corner of the present building. The addition will contain operating rooms on the first floor and central processing and distribution of surgical supplies on the ground floor.

County has positions open on CETAC, development, human relations boards

The county Board of Supervisors announced this week five openings on three county advisory bodies, the CETAC Council, the Community Development Committee and the Human Relations Commission.

CETAC, which advises the supervisors on federal jobs training programs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, needs three members to represent handicapped agencies, veterans' organizations and non-union labor.

The council meets on the third Thursday of the month in the county government center in Redwood City.

The Community Development Committee has one opening. The group, which advises the Board of Supervisors on housing and community activities, meets on the first Wednesday of the month, also in the government center.

The newly reorganized Human Relations Commission is seeking a representative of the Latino community to fill a vacant seat.

Applications for the five positions are available at the office of the Board of Supervisors. The deadline is April 30.

Earthquakes: their causes, predictability

By ARVILLE FINACOM

According to Naturalist Norm Kidder at Coyote Hills Regional Park, local Indian belief is that south San Francisco Bay is the "footprint" of the Creator Spirit, Coyote. The legend takes further substance in the naming of Coyote Hills along the Bay's eastern shore and of Coyote Point jutting out from the middle of its western edge. Viewed with a little imagination, satellite photos do give the impression that the bay is a water-filled indented paw print.

Geologists explain the entire Bay Area in far different fashion, especially the rift valley running inland from Mussel Rock in Daly City south through San Andreas and Crystal Springs Lakes through Woodside, into Santa Clara County and beyond. Actually, the rift is what geologists call a "crush zone," the area along which the movement we call earthquakes occurs.

In recent geologic time earthquakes have been common along this rift, the San Andreas Fault. Today, on the 63rd anniversary of the 1906 earthquake and fire which devastated San Francisco and left still-visible marks on the land, I'd like to give readers a look at earthquakes, their causes and predictability. Several kinds of earthquaking movement occurs. Along the San Andreas, it is what geologists call "strike/slip." To the west, the large earth mass called the Pacific plate is moving northwest at an average rate of two inches a year. The land mass to the east, the American plate, also is moving, but almost imperceptibly in relation to the Pacific plate and in a westerly direction.

Thomas McEvilly, geophysics professor at the University of California, Berkeley, describes the motion by saying "It's like taking two tombstones, putting silly putty between them, slapping them together horizontally, and then dragging one across the other. They will slip and stick and stick and slip. The granite of the tombstone face may not be defaced that much; it's the putty between them that keeps the stresses low."

One of the most interesting places to observe the physical effects of motion along the San Andreas Fault, especially its 1906 activity, is at the Los Trancos Open Space Preserve, seven miles west of Interstate 280 on Page Mill Road in south San Mateo County. Part of the preserve contains an earthquake trail, developed in 1976 by Foothill College Geologist Tim Hall and several of his students.

From Station 2 on the self-guiding, one kilometer (.6 mile) walking trail, the unparalleled view extends northwestward arrow-straight along the rift. From Station 1, a look south some 23 airline miles shows Loma Prieta, the mountain near Gilroy on whose western slope once lay the weathering marine conglomerate boulders now at one's feet. In 30 million years of slow motion, the Pacific plate has traveled that far nothwest.

Even if all you have time to do is climb the few steps to Station 1 and walk the short block from the parking lot to Station 2, the trip will be worthwhile. Those having an hour or so to take the trail (wear comfortable clothing and sturdy walking shoes and carry a canteen) will be rewarded by actual sights and reconstructions delineating 1906 movement.

Pick up a free trail guide folder at the trailhead. In addition to a warning about rattlesnake activity, it tells the story of sag ponds, healed crack areas still showing scarring, hillside terracing, what appear to be blasted oak trees, and the fence reconstructed from weathered lumber found on the land indicating the six-foot offset that occurred in 1906. If you've traveled the earthquake trail at Point Reyes National Seashore, you'll be struck with its similarity to Los Trancos. It's really not so strange, though, considering both detail 1906 activity and both were laid out under the direction of Tim Hall.

Hall's work with and interest in the San Andreas qualifies him as a recognized authority about it. The docents of the Mid-Peninsula Regional Open Space District who conduct weekly public earthquake trail walks, meeting in the parking lot at 2 p.m. each Sunday, take a geology course from Hall to qualify them. Special arrangements for groups of five or more for a docent-led walk on other days may be made by calling Ellie Huggins at 965-4717, Open Space District headquarters in Los Altos.

Also of interest, especially to those who prefer indoor earthquake education, the display "The San Andreas is Everyone's Fault" is a must see. Located at the Space Science Center at Foothill College, just off Interstate 280 at El Monte Avenue, the exhibit is open all day weekdays and afternoons Saturdays and Sundays.

Because some six million residents stand to be affected dramatically by any abrupt movement along the San Andreas, the Bay Area is, understandably, the national heart of earthquake prediction activity. Scientists at UC Berkeley, Stanford University, and at local private research institutions are bound together formally and informally in an idea exchanging network almost entirely federally funded and administered through the Western Regional Headquarters of the U.S. Geological Survey. Seeking now to find, compile and evaluate basic data, scientists aim to predict earthquakes within four parameters: location, time, magnitude and probability.

Perspective

USGS seismologist Chuck Boothy admits there is no capability yet to predict accurately, although most researchers agree that accurate prediction techniques may be available in "as soon as 10 years" or as far away as "the end of the century, or beyond."

The scientific means researchers are considering currently include ground tilt, ground water levels, radon concentration in ground water, magnetic field changes, changes in the gravitational field and measurement of ground strain. One extremely popular method is the measurement of fore shocks, the sequence of "little" quakes occurring over months or even years that precede a "big" one. Non-scientific descriptions of premonitionary phenomena, including abnormal animal behavior, which the Chinese claim to have used with great accuracy in predicting the devastating 1975 Hai Cheng quake, also are being considered. Interestingly, Stanford researchers have set up a network of volunteers linked to a 24-hour hot line who report variations in animal behavior.

Boothy comments "Some techniques will look much better in one area than they do in another," bearing out results of a study indicating that when routine prediction finally arrives, it will be based on several measuring methods. Necessarily, earthquake prediction must be measured against activity. Monitoring devices of many kinds are in place all over the Bay Area and the UC Geophysical Observatory near Hollister has been called the most elaborate and sophisticated in the world. When a "big one" happens along the San Andreas (its inevitability is not in question) reearchers will be ready.

Suspect jailed in robbery case

Pacifica police have arrested and jailed a suspect in the Monday night robbery of Farber's Pharmacy, in which narcotics with a retail value of about $75 was taken at gunpoint.

The holdup victim was Pacifica Mayor Stan Farber, who was about to depart for a City Council meeting at 6 p.m. April 9 when a man and a woman entered and the man produced a pistol and demanded drugs and cash, according to police reports. He got no cash, police said.

A broadcast of the description of the holdup pair led to a tentative identification by San Francisco police at their Southeast Station, who spotted the man's car, stopped it and arrested him Wednesday.

Arraigned in Northern District Municipal Court in South San Francisco Thursday was Carlton Williams of San Francisco, for robbery with the use of a firearm. Williams was held at the Redwood City jail, with bail set at $10,000.

His woman companion, still being sought, has been identified as Alecia Bonitez, 22, also of San Francisco. Bail on her also was set at $10,000.

Pacifica Officer Mike Gamble said the narcotics taken in the robbery had a street value much higher than their store retail price, and that some but not all of the narcotics were recovered.

"Jubilee" will be held starting May 3 and continuing through May 6 in the Parish Hall, 1 Elmwood Drive, Daly City.

Ernest Ribera to be feted

Tom Mohr, principal of Oceana High School in Pacifica, is taking reservations for a testimonial dinner May 4 honoring Ernest Ribera, assistant superintendent of the Jefferson Union High School District.

Ribera is retiring this spring to accept a position with Sacred Heart School in Menlo Park after 30 years with JUHSD. His last day at work will be April 30.

The dinner will begin with no-host cocktails at 6:30 p.m. followed by a prime rib meal at 7:30 p.m. Cost is $14 per person, including wine, tax, tip and gift.

Reservation requests, including payment in advance, should be sent no later than April 27 to Mohr at Oceana High, 401 Paloma Ave., Pacifica 94044.

John Muir School people are busy

There is a lot of activity at San Bruno's John Muir School.

For instance, Judy Puccini, president of PTA there is calling for parental help.

"Because of the way the state funds schools, and our declining enrollment (approximately half of what it was 10 years ago," she writes, "San Bruno Park School District is really in financial trouble.

"Even with the release of 20 teachers, (it) estimates a deficit of $563,965 for 1979-80, and the passage of SB 234, the Dills Bill, or AB 8, the Green Bill, still will leave the district between $300,000 and $400,000 short of balancing its budget.

"More cuts in personnel (not teachers), services and programs will be made. Our governor and legislators can solve the problem if they know we are concerned enough. I urge you to write any or all of the following, supporting SB 234 and AB 8, and telling them that programs are being cut and good teachers are being let go. It is time now for comprehensive long range legislation."

Mrs. Puccini also reports a new program starting at John Muir, a safety patrol. Officer Bob Timko has 20 John Muir students on the safety patrol. There are four five-member teams of boys and girls covering the intersections of Bennington and Crestmoor, and Cambridge and Crestmoor, at the morning hours and all dismissal times.

Ours is the first school to try this program, says Ms. Puccini, and by June the other district schools also should have patrols.

Presently, only sixth graders are involved, but before school is out the fifth graders will be trained.

At the March 21 school board meeting Timko praised John Muir students for their enthusiasm and sense of responsibility.

Irene Crivello, Media Center chairwoman at John Muir, reports a successful "Book Fair."

The profit of $200 was used to purchase new books for the library.

CIVIL ENGINEER

LUBBOCK, Tex. — Second Lieutenant Charles G. Homfeld, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Homfeld of 1118 Clinton St., Redwood City, is a member of the best civil engineering squadron in the Air Training Command (ATC).

Lieutenant Homfeld is an electrical engineer at Reese AFB, Tex., with the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron.

Unit personnel were cited for overall excellence during the past year.

DC Demos look at future of education

The Daly City Democratic Club will have a forum entitled "The Future of Public Education in Daly City" on April 26 at 8 p.m. at the Jefferson Elementary School District's office at 101 Lincoln Ave., Daly City.

The club has invited Jefferson Union High School District Superintendent Floyd Gonella, JESD Superintendent Peter Hansen and Marcy Dunne Ballard, president of Local 1481 of the American Federation of Teachers to participate in the forum.

There will be time for questions from the audience at the end of the presentations.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Filet mignon dinner Ben Franklin special

When the BENJAMIN FRANKLIN HOTEL announces a dinner special in their Greenwillow room, knowledgeable diners perk up their ears, as they know the hotel's reputation for quality and service means they're in for a treat. That's why the announcement of a Filet Mignon Steak dinner, which includes soup or salad, USDA Choice filet mignon, potatoes and vegetable for just $5.55., has made such an impact on value-minded diners. Served from 3 to 9 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays, this special dinner will be available through May 12 . . . Only the freshest seafood finds its way into the kitchen of VINCE'S Italian and Seafood restaurant in San Mateo. Owner NINA LICATA and son/manager TONY can pick and choose from the best from the briny deep at their next door VINCE'S Fresh Seafood Depot . . . One of the captivating things about going to TILLIE'S 'LIL' FRANKFURT German and continental restaurant in Moss Beach is the unexpected. Like the other Sunday when a talented young guitarist entertained the brunch crowd without introduction (had something to do with TILLIE SCHOLTZ' generosity to an aspiring musician) . . . Lunchtime is the bigtime at BAYHILL LOUNGE in the Bayhill Shopping Center, San Bruno. Regulars come from all around the Bay Area to enjoy good company and good food in generous portions . . . Well illuminated free parking is one of the many features of JIM SNIADECKI'S SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant in Redwood City. The huge lot is just a few steps from the entrance . . . PHIL LEHR'S STEAKERY, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower, is a favorite late-evening gathering spot for show biz celebrities and theater-goers. . . .

L'Auberge French cuisine famous

An inimitable French country inn atmosphere prevails at L'AUBERGE. The cuisine, service, decor and clientele seem to be well suited to the finer things of life in relaxed dining. Owner LOUIS FRUTSCHI gives meticulous attention to every detail . . . You can "mix'n match" combination plates at LA PINATA Mexican restaurant in downtown Burlingame. There's enchiladas with tacos, chile relleno, tamales, toastada, burritos or chili beans. Also offered are crab enchiladas and green enchiladas . . . There's a lot of nostalgic atmosphere in JOHN & KATHY'S, South San Francisco. A big, old oak and glass showcase is filled with just about all the odd artifacts from the 20's and 30's (and earlier) that could be found in one place. It's fun for old-timers to reminisce over 'em and young-timers to chuckle over 'em . . . It would be hard to imagine a more perfect setting for dining than the beautiful garden in full bloom at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE. Hundreds of other Bay Area residents agree, and the Greenhouse always fills up early on weekends . . . The new BLUE DIAMOND, a fresh seafood restaurant, at Taylor and Ellis across from the Hilton Tower, is one of the Bay Area's most luxurious dining spots. Serving dinner from 5 p.m., and there's $1 valet parking at the door.

Early day risers breakfast at Nick's

Early risers heading for the coastside during the weekend (also on weekdays) will be happy to know that NICK'S restaurant lounge at Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, will start the day with breakfast service, followed by lunch and dinner service from early afternoon into the evening hours. Adjacent restaurants, CAPTAIN CHARLES for gourmet seafood and THE MOONRAKER for continental cuisine . . . The menu at PHIL LEHR'S STEAKERY, on the lower level of the S.F. Hilton Tower, goes far beyond the usual steak house fare. In addition to Phil's famed Pay-By-Ounce steaks, there are gourmet flamed-at-the-table steak dishes like Steak Diane and Pepper Steak Flambe, plus Lamb Rack Wellington for two, fresh Salmon En Croute and Chicken Oscar. . . . JOHN CHIANG has geared his GONG'S Chinese restaurant in South San Francisco for full delivery, catering and take-out food service, in addition to service on the premises . . . After word got around that JERRY LYERLA had purchased JOHN'S PLACE in downtown Burlingame, an old-time bar and grill with a colorful history as a "working man's bar," many of Jerry's friends flocked to his new spot to wish him well and to mingle with the long-time "regulars." Open seven days a week from 6 a.m. to 2 a.m. . . . DEAN LEHR'S Wednesday eve dance contest at LEHR'S CABARET DISCO continues to attract the best dancers in the Bay Area. . . "Well" liquors served at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB, in the heart of San Francisco's Geary Street "Theater Row," are all top-name brands.

A new name appeared in the bulletin of the Pacifica Chanmber of Commerce announcing their general membership meeting. The program chairman was listed as President-elect Pasquale Prosciutto. Puzzled members thought first vice-president and president-elect was Enrico Romano, dapper owner of Romano's Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach. When a picture of "Pasquale" appeared in the local newspaper, the mystery was solved. Enrico's friends in the Chamber had played a gag on him. It was also his birthday. So, no matter what handle he used, we wish Enrico or Pasquale or both a "Happy Birthday."

PARISH FESTIVAL

Our Lady of Perpetual Help Parish, 80 Wellington Ave., Daly City, will have its Parish Festival Weekend beginning with bingo on the evening of April 27 and game booths on April 28 from noon to 10 p.m. Game booths also will be set up from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, according to Jim Scott, right, who is co-chairman along with Rudy Espinosa. Scott is discussing plans with Father Antonio R. Reye. Julie Sanchez of the Latin Club is in charge of refreshments and dinner. Proceeds from the festival will benefit the school.

Final book review set

For The Friends of the Daly City Library's final book review of the 1978-79 series, Leo King, San Francisco Press Club librarian and literary critic, and Ruth Bransten McDougall, author, will have a dialogue discussing her recently published "Coffee, Martinis, and San Francisco" on April 26, 10 a.m., in the community room, Westlake Library.

Virginia Tierney, president, says the public can attend. The event is presented as a community service and is free of charge.

King was a reviewer for The Friends last year.

According to Book Review Chairman Lorraine Sandefur, Ruth Bransten McDougall is granddaughter of M. J. Bransten, founder of the M. J. B. Coffee Co. Her book, published by Presidio Press, is a history of the coffee company and its times, going back to the Chicago fire of 1906, up to the modern era. Now a widow, the author was married to Scotsman McDougall.

Copies of her book will be available for autographing.

A get-acquainted coffee period, which will precede the review, will be hostessed by Hospitality Chairman Eileen Kenny, assisted by Alice Barichievich and committee members.

Reservations will be taken at the program for the no-host luncheon honoring the author and King. This will follow the program and be held at Val's Restaurant, 89th and Junipero Serra, Daly City.

THE DIET CORNER

By Elise Gendar, the Diet Workshop

By ELISE GENDAR

Elise Gendar, private investigator.

And today's thriller is "The Case of the Blurred Fork."

I was sitting in my office, adding up calories and subtracting carbohydrates when the phone rang.

It was a distraught wife. Too much husband. This is my kind of case. I stay away from missing spice (plural for spouse). Too much of a present hushand I handle.

Packing my pocket calculator and well-sharpened pencil, I sped to the scene of the crime. It was 6 p.m. The place was a pleasant kitchen. The table was set for three — the wife, the husband and me.

I checked the dinner menu. Broiled fish, carrots with dill, string beans, iced tea, and pineapple chunks. Proper diet. No problem there. My calculator calculated calories well within range.

We sat down. The husband was attractive, overweight and friendly. He did not evade my questions.

Yes, he ate according to his diet plan.

Yes, he was sincere about losing weight.

No, he did not add butter, sugar, and extra calories to his day.

Then where, oh where, was the too much coming from?

Wife and I proceeded to eat. We chewed slowly. We conversed. Across from me, I noted the husband, fork to mouth, to plate, to mouth, to plate, to mouth, to plate, to mouth. In five minutes, there was no more food on plate. In 12 minutes he had piled on more.

"Ah-hah!" I cried, "your problem is the problem of the blurred fork. You are eating too fast."

I handed the wife this recipe for a super main dish.

BAKED CHICKEN PARMESAN

- 1 teaspoon oregano
- 1 teaspoon butter flavored salt
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- ½ teaspoon garlic salt
- 2 fryer or broiler chickens
- 1 cup instant chicken bouillon
- 2 4-ounce cans mushrooms
- 1 ounce grated parmesan cheese

Combine first four ingredients and sprinkle on chicken. Place chicken in shallow non-stick pan, skin side down and bake in 350-degree oven for 30 minutes. Add bouillon and cook another 20 minutes. Add mushrooms and sprinkle topside of chicken with parmesan cheese. Bake another 15 minutes or until tender. If chicken is not brown and crispy, place under broiler for a few minutes, just to brown. Serve hot.

"When you eat," I told the husband, "put your fork down between bites. Set a timer. Your first helping should last for 20 minutes. It takes that long from the first bite for your stomach to send out full signals. You are eating two meals, not one. The second helping causes your weight problem."

I returned to my office. One week later, the phone rang, it was the wife. Her husband had lost three pounds.

I took out the file. I wrote "closed" across the "Case of the Blurred Fork."

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Sandwiches need never be boring or routine. For with just a little imagination, you can create a different sandwich for every day of the week.

This excellent variation of the Reuben sandwich offers good-eating variety. It gets off to a good start with flavorful pork sausage formed into patties, pan fried and combined with the favorite Reuben ingredients of thousand island dressing, sauerkraut and Swiss cheese.

Placed in a broiler until the cheese melts, this warm and toasty sandwich adds an element of fun to any meal, says Reba Staggs, National Livestock and Meat Board home economist.

SAUSAGE REUBEN SANDWICHES

- 1 pound pork sausage
- 2 tablespoons water
- 4 slices rye bread with caraway seeds
- ¼ cup thousand island dressing
- ½ cup sauerkraut, well drained
- 2 slices Swiss cheese, cut in half diagonally.

Shape one pound sausage into four oval patties, a half-inch thick. Place in a cold frying pan, add two tablespoons water, cover and cook slowly five minutes. Pour off drippings. Cook patties slowly on both sides until well done.

Toast four slices of rye bread. Spread each of the slices with one tablespoon dressing, top dressing side of each with two tablespoons sauerkraut, a cooked sausage patty and a triangle of cheese. Broil three inches from heat until cheese melts.

Yield: 4 sandwiches.

All Supermarkets are not the same ...

Key Buys mean added savings.

A Lucky Exclusive

The most important thing to remember is that Key Buys stretch your buying power.

Manufacturers are willing to give supermarkets a temporary promotional allowance to help stimulate sales on certain products. All supermarkets are offered this allowance. But what makes the big difference is that Lucky passes these allowances on to its customers in the form of lower prices! We call them "Key Buys" and they represent these temporary promotional allowances or exceptional purchases, and normally carry a lower price than our everyday low price.

There is never enough room in our weekly newspaper advertisements to list every Key Buy we have, so that's why we use special shelf tags to identify the items while you shop the aisles. Each one identifies an added savings ... and you'll find the Key symbol on our display signs as well as shelf tags. This is the quickest way to let you know about added temporary savings!

Umpires won't beg, says D.C.'s Ed Montague

Le Pacini

By the time this is printed, the major league baseball umpires' strike may be over. On the other hand, the careers of the 53 best umpires in the world may be over because, as Eddie Montague Jr. says, "We're mad as hell, and we're not going to take it any more."

Montague, the only Daly City native to ever umpire in the big leagues, is now being supported by his wife, Marcia, who is a stewardess for TWA.

What the umpires are striking over is not their basic agreement, which expires in 1981, but their individual contracts in which they negotiate their own salaries.

"I heard," says Montague, "that Lee MacPhail (president of the American League) has said that, 'These guys will get hungry and come back crawling on their knees.' I don't know whether or not it's true he said that, but if he did, he's 100 percent wrong. I'd just as soon go get another job."

When Eddie Montague can be driven to make a statement like that, baseball has made a sad decision.

I've known Eddie since he was a freshman at Westmoor High. He's always lived and died baseball. When his father, the great Giants scout, convinced Eddie he wasn't good enough to play professionally, Eddie became an umpire. After a year in the California League, he made the jump to the Pacific Coast League, becoming, at age 24, one of the youngest umpires in the modern history of the PCL.

When he made the National League in 1976, he was only 27. Now one of the best umpires in the world is so upset with the moguls of baseball, that he's willing to retire in protest over what he feels are terrible wrongs, and that isn't right.

"The salaries they've been giving us," says Montague, "are just a joke. So is the per diem." (Note: The strike is over salaries, not per diem, which is part of the basic agreement.)

Major league umpires, explains Montague, get $53 per diem. Out of that, umpires must pay for their hotel rooms, cab rides, tips and clubhouse dues.

"Let's take an average National League City like Pittsburgh," says Montague. "A cab ride in from the Pittsburgh airport is about $18. The rooms are now about $40. By the time you tip your bags to your rooms, it's at least $3-$4. Then we go out to the park and we have to tip the clubhouse guys at least $5. That's $67-$68, and we haven't even eaten yet!"

Montague keeps a little black book on his expenses, and he averages about $3-$3,500 over his per diem a year. And Montague claims that he's only an average spender, that some umps go $5,000 and more out-of-pocket. They need a salary increase just to make up what they throw back into the league's per diem.

"Here's the irony," chuckles Montague grimly, "They tell us we represent the National League, that whatever we do we have to go first class. But they only want to pay us second class."

Montague says that some of the hard feelings over the years might have been alleviated somewhat if the National League had shown concern for the families of the umpires. He points out that, counting spring training, umpires are on the road for seven months. Eddie is one of the lucky ones because he lives in a National League city, but even he spent only 15 days at home last season. Many of the umpires never get home, and they can't afford to have their families meet them on the road.

"You'd think," muses Montague, "that the leagues — at least during spring training — would give you a plane ticket for your wife. Maybe a little extra money for the hotel. But they couldn't care less about our families. That's what really gripes me."

What gripes Montague equally are what he calls the "scabs" — the amateur and minor league umpires who went to work despite the strike.

As Montague was telling "scab" umpires: "You're not showing any respect for the major league umpires, and I really don't think you need the $108 you're making for the game. I think you're going in there for the glory. We're trying to better our positions, and they're just slowing us down. You're crutches for Feeney and MacPhail."

As for Pryor, "I don't think I'm going to forgive and forget. Paul was well-liked by the other umpires, and I understand he had some financial problems. But we all do.

"I'll tell you, if I was drowning in quicksand and I was holding onto a rope, I wouldn't want Paul Pryor on the other end."

Ted Hendry, the rookie American League umpire who is working because he had signed a personal contract prior to the strike, has the total support of the umpires. In fact, he didn't want to work, but Montague says that the umpires told him to, because "What Hendry is doing is right. Pryor was wrong."

Meanwhile, Montague is heartened by what he says is growing fan, player and ownership support, but disheartened by that he thinks are dirty tricks by the league offices.

"I know the owners care," he says, "and that they're worried. Officials from the league offices have been telling the press that the owners don't care about us. But they're lying.

"Feeney hasn't been fair at all. They've told the players and managers to lay off the amateur umps, so the fans will get the idea that umps are doing capable jobs.

"But now that the chips are down, a lot of the managers and players are getting a little angry.

"Feeney's hard stand really began, I think, when the courts refused to issue an injunction to send us back to work. I think it hurt Feeney's pride. About six weeks ago, I understand, MacPhail talked to the AL umps and was in sympathy with them. Then Feeney seemed to sway him. Now they're both being stubborn.

"The people who sit in the league offices think there's nothing to umpiring, to go out there and run a ball game.

"Not only are we paid poorly and are always on the road, we don't even have substitutes. Last year at Candlestick I got the hardest shot I've ever gotten, got hit in the knee and went right down. But I got up and made believe it didn't hurt, because as soon as you let on, the fans start getting on you. So I stayed there and worked the game, like a dummy.

"I guarantee you, I've seen Lee Weyer hit with shots that I thought were sure broken bones. He never leaves.

"Ball players go out with hangnails and then get cheered.

"Yet, Feeney and MacPhail let this go on. I feel sorry for the fans. Baseball is cheapening a quality product, taking the integrity out of the game, and that's eventually got to hurt baseball."

And Eddie Montague doesn't want to see baseball hurt, and doesn't want to leave the game, but insists that, "I'm not going to work unless I get what I'm asking for. We're not budging. We're not bluffing. I love my job, but you can get stomped on for only so long.

"What we're asking for is a quarter of one percent of what they (the owners) took in last year. It comes to $18,000 a club. When they can get that low, where they can't meet our demands on minimal salaries, I'm ready to tell them to take the job and shove it."

Serra wins tourney by beating Rams, 7-3

By MIKE FICHER

The name on the marquee drew a few more fans and several interested major league scouts, but Serra High's T. J. Noonan did not play the lead role in Thursday's championship game of the Westmoor-Flying Goose Easter Baseball Tournament at Marchbanks Park.

While the Padres' hard-throwing righthander was the main attraction and did play a major supporting role, Greg Funk was the star of Serra's 7-3 win over Westmoor in the four-day tourney's title feature.

The senior shortstop ripped four hits in as many at-bats, knocked in three runs and triggered two double plays to direct the Pads to their first championship in the 11th annual event.

In the consolation championship contest, Crestmoor rebounded from a 3-0 deficit to defeat Ponderosa, 5-3.

In Serra's first two tournament wins, Funk's presence was virtually unnoticeable except for one RBI single and his usual top-notch defense.

"When the other players were out with injuries, I was trying to do it all myself," Funk said. "I was trying to make up for their loss. Now that they're back, I'm seeing the ball a little better and I'm more patient at the plate."

"Greg was pressing, and this was causing him to screw up his timing," Padre Coach Dave Stevens noted. "Now that all the players are healthy, Greg is more relaxed and hitting the ball better."

Three Westmoor pitchers will attest to that.

In the first inning with the Padres trailing 2-0, Funk stung a fastball into leftfield to drive in Bill Healy and Dan O'Leary with the tying runs.

In the fourth inning, the Pad shortstop doubled to left field to score O'Leary with Serra's fifth run of the game. In the seventh, Funk ripped an 0-2 fastball into center field for his fourth hit.

After Funk knocked in the first two runs in the first inning, third baseman Dan Molieri was safe on an error and after a walk, first baseman Rich McGlennon drove in the two Pads with a single to left field — and that was all the runs Noonan really needed.

Admittedly, though, Noonan did not have his best stuff against Westmoor.

"I didn't have real good heat today," he said. "I had to go to the breaking pitch more and they had the advantage because they knew it was coming. I just tried to keep it low and let the infield do the work.

"In the later innings my fastball picked up, but really, when a team scores this many runs like we did how can you stop it?"

Perhaps there is no stopping the Pads — or at least Stevens and company hope so.

"We've been playing good ball. The thing that really impressed me today was the fact that we were behind for the first time," Stevens noted. "The kids though really came back. They have a good feeling now, a lot of confidence. I hope we can stay in the groove, because we'll be tough in the second round of league (WCAL)."

And one of the keys will be the scouts attraction — Noonan.

"People were telling me they had given up on me because of my arm problems," the stocky righthander said. "But when I saw them there today I thought 'Whoa, what can I say, they're still interested.' That sort of surprised me but I didn't feel any extra pressure because of their presence."

Westmoor Coach Rod Losberger noted that Noonan was not at his best, but was still satisfied with the Ram effort.

"I was happy with the way the kids swung the bat. Some guys who had not been hitting got some hits. We may be coming around now.

"No, Noonan did not throw as fast as he's capable of. But the thing about him is that on 3 and 2, you don't find many guys who throw the curve. Our kids are used to looking at the fastball in the NPL."

Noonan registered seven strikeouts, including five on called third strikes.

McCovey's new role

By JACK BLUTH

WHETHER HE is still one of the most feared hitters in the National League or not — the critics say he doesn't really scare the guys who throw smoke — Willie McCovey doesn't remind you of a washed-up baseball player. Two doubles in two appearances in that season-opening series against Cincinnati and a pinch single against the San Diego Padres in Tuesday's home opener in Candlestick Park is some kind of a performance — especially for a performer who's playing a role he doesn't dig.

When Willie McCovey says he can't be as effective a hitter coming off the bench as he is when he's making three or four trips to th plate in each game, he's talking from experience. As a pinch hitter with San Diego a couple of seasons ago, McCovey hit only .203. And in part of one season with the Oakland A's he went to the plate 25 times as a pinch hitter and collected only five hits — all singles. "I was just like any other ballplayer who sits too much and sees only batting-practice pitching," said McCovey in the wake of that demise. "Under game conditions, you suddenly discover that your timing isn't there against the good pitchers. And the only way you can get it back is to play."

MANAGER JOE ALTOBELLI says McCovey's "understanding" about losing his job as the Giants' regular first baseman to Mike Ivie, ironically, another San Diego castoff. Some of the writers close to the team dispute that. But it may be a semantical issue. If Altobelli means McCovey can handle his new role because he's got the discipline to cope with it, he's probably as right as he was when he decided to go with the younger man as his regular first baseman. It was a tough decision, like telling McCovey he's over the hill, and Altobelli couldn't tell McCovey that. The manager wasn't suggesting McCovey would enjoy his new role.

DISCIPLINE IS a vanishing quality among athletes today. It's not their fault. Permissiveness has outmoded it. Suggested one of San Mateo County's veteran coaches when asked to compare today's prep athletes with the schoolboy jocks of a decade or two ago . . . "the kids today are bigger and stronger, but they don't have the discipline the athletes did years ago. They don't have it because you can't teach it. We used to kick them off the team for breaking the rules. We don't anymore. We don't because nobody backs us up. So now I treat them with kid gloves. But the kids who go the furthest, the successful ones, are those who show the most discipline."

Camino suffers second setback

By TIM MENICUTCH

It was fairly obvious that El Camino High's baseball team was in a bad slump just by listening to the roaring ovation it received from its fans for a simple one-two-three inning.

After all, El Camino High baseball and winning are usually mentioned in the same breath.

But the slump-ridden Colts dropped their second contest in as many tries, 8-5 to Vallejo, as the South San Francisco Tournament resumed Thursday.

Hitting has been El Camino's biggest problem of late, but Thursday a new problem arose . . . defense. For the first three innings against Vallejo, El Camino couldn't throw the ball around the infield without committing an error.

Four miscues in the first three innings allowed Vallejo to score seven unearned runs.

"This slump started last week in our loss to Westmoor," said El Camino Coach Lou Zuardo. "It's hard to say what the reasons are. I wish I knew.

"Again we didn't play well," Zuardo went on. "Even though the offense started hitting late in he game, the defense was booting the ball all over the place.

"Part of the problem today was probably our tough loss (1-0) to St. Francis on Tuesday," Zuardo said. "When you start against a tough opponent like St. Francis and lose a one-run-game, it's really hard to come back.

"I don't know what I'm going to do about the slump," said Zuardo. "I'm not going to say anything to the team. I'm just going to have to hope we can work our problems out on the field.

"I don't know how these losses in this tournament will affect us once league resumes," he said. "Hopefully we'll just shrug it off, knowing that league games are the important ones."

The Colts had just six hits and only one of those was good for extra bases.

El Camino scored a single run in the second inning without connecting for a hit. Three walks and an error by the Vallejo shortstop, and El Camino was on the scoreboard.

The Colts scored another lone run in the third frame. A walk, a single and an RBI single by Al Hoffer brought the run across the plate. But it was really of little importance — by the time the inning was over, El Camino trailed 8-2.

Lou Zuardo

Zuardo finally found a successful pitcher in the fourth inning, after already going through two, in Guy Buckowatz. Buckowatz hurled three strong innings of no-hit baseball, but it was too late.

El Camino did have a desperation rally in the seventh inning. After two walks and two outs, catcher Merlin Nelson slammed a double down the leftfield line to clean the bases. Al Hoffer knocked in the final run of the game with his second RBI single.

Canada baseballers down state's best

By RICK EYMER

SANTA MARIA — Canada College's baseball team played like police in its opening round game with Los Angeles Valley in the Allan Hancock Easter Tournament Thursday.

Valley tried to steal the game, but the Colts arrested the culprits in time to gain a 9-8 victory over the top-ranked junior college baseball squad in California.

Valley (22-2) entered the game with a reputation of taking a base while the pitcher was busy rubbing up a new baseball. Its 12 stolen bases of 13 attempts Thursday did little to negate that reputation. However, 'Canada outhit the L.A. team 15-14 and got effective relief pitching from Frank Vasquez.

The Colts scored the winning run in the top half of the ninth inning after Ed Walton, who had hit a solo home run in the fourth, walked and advanced to second when Louie Ayers beat out a sacrifice bunt. Jon Catalano singled to load the bases and Billy Swanberg singled Walton home.

But Vasquez may have been the hero.

"He did a super job," said Colt Coach Lyman Ashley. "He came in with a runner on and a run in in the eighth and shut 'em down."

Vasquez has not given up an earned run this season. He got a double play and a strikeout in the eighth and then got the side in order in the ninth to record the victory.

Canada started the scoring early, when, after one was gone, consecutive singles by Swanberg, Willie Davis, Craig Courchaine and Al Smoot produced two Colt runs.

But Valley struck back in its half of the first for four runs against starting pitcher Jon Catalano.

Canada tied the game at six in the sixth, then added two in the seventh to take an 8-6 advantage before Valley scored single runs in the seventh and eighth to knot the game again.

"They are a super ballclub," commented Ashley, "but I thought maybe they were thinking we would fold. Valley has had nothing but runaways this year, and perhaps they thought we'd die. But we've been involved in too many one-run games this year to let the pressure get to us." It was the Colts' 11th one-run game of the year.

Catalano, although allowing seven earned runs and all 14 Valley hits, pitched effectively at times. When the lead-off hitter reached base in the seventh, Catalano picked him off, the next batter tripled. In the fifth, Valley had the bases loaded with none out; Catalano got a strikeout and a double play to get out of the jam.

Mistakes hurt the Colts early. Poor bunt defense and missed assignments allowed Valley the early advantage. But the Colts received help from Valley in the form of three key errors.

"Now I KNOW we can play good baseball," Ashley said. "They hit the ball well and we hit the ball well. We got the pitching when we needed it, and they were an excellent ballclub. We just didn't fold up. The fact that we have played in this kind of pressure before was to our advantage."

Canada has had an up-and-down year. The Colts went undefeated during pre-season play and then jumped off to a good start in the Golden Gate Conference. But Canada fell into a slump and lost five of six games, four by a single run. The Colts have beaten every team in the GGC, but have also lost to every team.

Two other GGC teams are participating in the tourney. Foothill and De Anza both lost, while another Northern California team, College of the Sequoias, lost to Cerritos, Canada's opponent today. Mike Armstrong gets the starting call for that one.

Skeet ball now a game

By RICHARD C. MOON

Skeeting shooting is one of the country's most popular sports. It involves a pattern of shooting at disc-shaped clay targets called "birds" or "clay pigeons" which are thrown or sailed through the air by a mechanical device. The purpose of skeet is to improve your skill at game shooting by simulating conditions that occur in actual field shooting. At least that was the original purpose. As the sport grew in popularity, it became a sport by itself for marksmen, many of whom do not even engage in field shooting.

Trap shooting, the forerunner of skeet, was introduced into the United States in 1830 but it wasn't until 1880 when a successful clay target was developed that the sport really caught on.

The term "skeet" is derived from an old Norse word meaning "shoot," and was adopted after a nationwide contest to name the sport in 1925. That same year the National Skeet Shooting Association was formed and there has been some sort of national championship every year since. World championships now are in a different country each year and skeet is a part of the Olympic Games.

All of this brings us to a great electric toy by Ideal Toy Corp. called "Electronic 2-Man Skeet."

"Electronic 2-Man Skeet" is an exceptionally well designed toy/game designed to bring the thrill of outdoor skeet shooting indoors. The game consists of two shotguns which plug into a small console containing precision mechanisms. The console projects images of discs on any wall in your home. Generally, you would place the console on a small table about six feet from a wall.

The game can be played against an opponent or solitaire. You sharpen your skills by playing against the console in three basic game modes. There are several variations of each mode of play.

In Skeet Game, the console projects a target (a beam of light) onto the wall. The target moves back and forth across the wall in a more or less steady pattern. In Running Target, the target moves in a random pattern. In Disappearing Target, the target moves in an irregular pattern and appears and disappers at random.

As the targets move across the wall, you try to shoot them with your shotgun. The console broadcasts a "boom" when you fire and when a "hit" is made the target actually bursts in a rather colorful display. The electronic brain in the console keeps score and even declares the winner.

This is a very exciting electronic game. It is not battery operated nor is it a TV video game. Since it is an electric game which plugs into your standard house electric outlet, it is not recommended for children under nine years of age. As with all electric products, precautions should be observed during handling and use.

The game is very well made and of high quality. It can provide hours of fun and entertainment for the marksman and the would-be marksman.

How to recognize cataracts

By D. R. BARNETT, DVM

Question: Is there any accurate way to check a dog's eyesight? We have a Cocker named Beanie who is pretty old, almost 12 years. We have noticed that since the first of the year that he literally "bumps into things." Is there any medicine or treatment that can improve his vision?

H.V.

Answer: Cataracts are the most common condition affecting the vision in older dogs. You often can see cataracts as an icy blue circular mass in the center of the eye, actually involving the lens. Surgery can be done on these cataracts but, as a practical matter, in older dogs it is rarely performed because the benefits seldom outweigh the discomfort the dog experiences following the surgery.

If the dog is kept in familiar surroundings he will become accustomed to the areas and not bump into things so frequently, provided you don't move the furniture too often. There are numerous conditions that could be causing this problem. Cataracts are just the most likely cause. You should have Beanie examined by your veterinarian to see if anything can be done to help his vision. Perhaps you and he will be lucky and it will be a condition that can be corrected.

Question: Jessebelle, one of my parakeets, has grown a very long beak. It is twice as long as it should be and curves down to her chin. She seems to be able to eat all right but it looks most peculiar. What should I do about this situation?

P.B.

Answer: Jessebelle should have her beak trimmed back to its normal length. If it continues to grow it might eventually start penetrating her chest and it certainly will interfere with her eating. The beak can be trimmed fairly easily by your veterainarian and this should be done as frequently as is necessary to maintain its normal shape.

One of my books on birds states that the beak of a parakeet can grow one-fourth inch per month, so if the bird doesn't wear it down normally it will need to be trimmed. A small piece of sandpaper attached to the side of the cage might help.

Serramonte closure rumors false

By GENNY HOM
Commissioner of Outside Publicity
Serramonte High School

No doubt many of you have heard the numerous and persistent rumors that Serramonte High School will close. According to our principal, Mr. DuBois, and Jefferson Union High School superintendent, Dr. Gonella, these rumors are false.

When I interviewed Mr. DuBois and Dr. Gonella, both expressed the opinion that the problem of school closures centers around the great decline in student enrollment. The district is losing students at a higher than normal rate. Dr. Gonella said that the district enrollment, now at 6,816, is declining at a rate of 200 to 500 students a year.

He expects that trend to continue for several years until enrollment is down to 6,000 students. Also putting extra weight on the problem are the effects of Proposition 13. Gonella said that the district's declining enrollment has made officials certain that "in the next three years we will be using schools differently."

He also added it would be "professionally irresponsible for the superintendent not to take necessary action in regards to declining enrollment."

Dr. Gonella has initiated a special task force, (a district-wide committee), to look at the five schools in the district, Serramonte, Westmoor, Jefferson, Terra Nova and Oceana, to "study what kind of process is involved to deal with declining enrollment." After the facts have been gathered by the committee, they will take the question to the Board of Trustees.

The first new and different use of schools might be to move the district office site, now located in the Westlake Shopping Center. The school district is paying $23,124 a year to rent the Westlake offices for staff functions.

In the past, the district office was located at Jefferson High School. If the district offices are moved to school sites, Dr. Gonella said that the offices would be expected to take up "only certain sections and wings of a school. This would not mean that a regular educational program could not continue at the school."

Other different ways of utilizing school sites would be to change schools into "magnet schools." Gonella explained to me that magnet schools are ones that attract students. Schools could specialize in different courses. For example, in the case of foreign languages, which are showing great declines in enrollment, one school in the district would be the central language center and students would be bused in. Other courses that the "magnet school plan" would be adapted to are the business, science and industrial arts classes.

By creating a master industrial arts complex at one school, for instance, the district could "pool equipment for a better program." Of course the pooling of courses would mean a need for reduction in staff. However, Dr. Gonella emphasizes, "I don't see any layoffs of our regular staff. We'll be hiring less and less staff and some staff will not be returning."

Even if schools are going to be used differently, the innocent students will be the ones who are hurt the most. Recently, the "Serramonte Crown" staff conducted an opinion poll on the closing of a school. The question that was asked was: If a school should be closed because of financial reasons, which school do you think should be closed and what are your reasons? Here are a few of the student opinions:

One freshman wrote, "In my opinion, no schools should close. Every school has its own community and the school board shouldn't destroy it. If schools are to educate and benefit the students, well that's what it should do. If the schools close it will only hurt the students, not the people in the superintendent's office. Instead of closing a school, the highly paid administrators and other extras should be cut. The fat should be cut, not the meat."

A senior had similar feelings when she wrote:

"I feel that you shouldn't have to close any school. If there are financial problems we should find a solution to them. Maybe by cutting back on the top administrators' salaries, or by cutting back on something that won't hurt the students' education. To close down a school would be unfair and inconsiderate to the students."

Another student gave very valid and important reasons why Serramonte should not be the school to close. The student wrote:

Why close the newest school in the district? The business wing and second gym are only a few years old.

Most of the school is under one roof so students stay dry when it rains. There are few windows so there are not many bills for broken glass.

Serramonte is in a central location; it is on a public transportation line which makes it accessible to students in the entire area."

Personally, I feel that Serramonte should not be the school that closes. No school should have to be closed. The purpose of a school, any school, is to help the students and provide them for a successful life in the outside world.

Parents and students are urged to communicate their thoughs and feelings to school board members, district office staff and to Mr. DuBois. Also, if you have any solutions to the problems Serramonte faces as a school, regarding school closures, the staff of the "Crown" encourages you to express your opinion by writing a "Letter to the Editor" for the May issue of our school newspaper.

Buying for buses keeps agent on line

By JOHN CURRY

When you're buying things for a specialized public agency, you shop in some pretty esoteric places.

In the case of the San Mateo County Transit District, that means everything from collecting catalogs, price lists and merchandise listings from large and small businesses and manufacturers all over the country to keeping tabs on prices at the local five-and-dime.

SamTrans purchasing agent Don R. Kernen has been doing that since joining the district in 1976, shopping for everything from new buses and transmission spindle calipers to paper clips.

Kernen is in charge of buying with the money the district board of directors has approved spending from an estimated $14.6 million budget this fiscal year, more than two-thirds of that from federal and state urban transit grants and the rest from the fare box.

Of the $14.6 million budget, close to $1 million will be spent for general operating costs, 80 to 90 percent of that for replacement parts for the 200-bus SamTrans fleet and the largest chunk of the remainder for stationery.

The district writes a lot of letters and does considerable written promotional work.

But for Kernen, it's a matter of knowing his way around the market for the thousands of items requisitions from the various SamTrans department heads call for.

He handles an average of six to 12 requisitions a day for orders costing a few cents to $3,500. Anything over that has to be obtained through formal written bidding and approved by the board.

SamTrans has drawn some criticism for its backing of a new bill, now in the Legislature in Sacramento, which would raise the informal bid limit from its present $3,500 to $10,000. For any purchases over $3,500 now, the district board must call for bids through legal advertising, set bid opening dates and vote on accepting the lowest responsible bid.

At present, Kernen asks for a written informal bid, called a Request for Quote, for purchases of over $1,000, and generally does his shopping by phone for orders under $1,000.

For instance, he recently negotiated the purchase for drapes for the North County Maintenance Base in South San Francisco. Those prices came in at $600 to $700 in phone calls for four different firms, he said. Three calls are required by law in bidding of this kind.

What Assembly Bill 288, authored by Assemblymen Robert Naylor, R-Menlo Park, and Victor Calvo, D-Mountain View, would do is allow SamTrans to use Kernen's RFQ procedure on orders of up to $10,000 for anything but construction work.

In these inflationary times, Kernen said, he sees this as necessary. "We're getting to the (informal) bid limit on many of our purchases," he said. "If it keeps up, the board will be flooded with formal bids."

The directors presently are called on to approve about three such formal bids a month, at a cost of about 10 percent of what the project is for, Kernen said.

SamTrans management has claimed before legislative committees that the cost-saving from fewer formal bids would be $40,000 to $50,000 a year if the limit was raised. The only opposition before the Assembly Transportation Subcommittee was reported to have come from the California Newspaper Publishers Association, whose spokesman argued that the money saved from formal bid procedures wouldn't disappear from the agency's budget. The required legal advertising, by law, must run in local general circulation newspapers.

Raising the limit would bring SamTrans more into line with other transit agencies, it was pointed out.

A legislative analyst's report on AB288 says that although most of the transit districts in California have an informal bid ceiling of $3,000 to $5,000, the minimum required on formal bids for BART, AC Transit in the East Bay, and the Santa Clara County Transportation Agency recently was raised to $10,000, and for Golden Gate Transit, which operates between San Francisco and Marin County, it is $20,000.

Naylor, it may be noted, was chairman of the SamTrans Citizens Advisory Committee before being elected to the Assembly last year. Calvo's district includes East Palo Alto in San Mateo County, one of SamTrans' major passenger markets.

By comparison, general law cities have a $5,000 limit for non-competitive bidding and school districts have a legal ceiling of $8,500.

"I'd stay with the written informal bids for up to $10,000," Kernen said, noting he saw no problem of possibly paying too much for something. "The merchandise usually is a known quantity of an off-the-shelf item" in that cost category, which would mean few if any specialty items or big price fluctuations, he indicated.

Kernen said he doesn't "play any favorites" with the district's suppliers of goods and services. He can't.

"The problem with a public agency is that by law you have to take the lowest price. It doesn't say anything about the quality. Even when I know where the quality is, I always take the lowest price."

Three of his most useful purchasing tools have been the California Minorities Directory of minority-operated businesses, a Metropolitan Transportation Commission directory of urban mass transit supplies and services, and his own survey last year "on who provides what."

Kernen has issued a handy 11-page booklet entitled "How to sell your products to the San Mateo County Transit District," which he says gives everyone a fair shot at the approximately $700,000 a year business in small or routine items the district buys.

The result has been a lengthening list of vendors offering their wares.

"My Rollodex is full," Kernen said, turning the fat round file.

Buying things by phone and without written bids has been known to draw fire on public agencies. Kernen said he can defend himself through his honest attempt to be fair in his informal bidding procedures.

"That I know the guy or anything like that doesn't cut any ice," he said.

Vendors can make points for themselves, too. "I select those for bidding (for under $1,000) who have shown us their product and what they can do," Kernen pointed out. If this number of vendors is large for one item, such as a dozen selling envelopes, "I rotate 4-4-4 among the 12 on the order," he said. He could call everyone, but by logical progression he would have to try every supplier in the area, which for common items might run into the dozens or even hundreds.

"Where do you draw the line?" Kernen asked.

"I don't have time to spend all day on the phone. But I think we've covered every base we know on the acquisition of parts and supplies."

There are instances where knowing someone can save money. On copy machine paper, for example, "I buy direct from a guy at the San Mateo Union High School District office" because it's cheaper to get in on the school district's volume order, Kernen asserted.

There also is the problem of obsolete parts, not unusual because some of SamTrans' buses are old hand-me-downs from other transit agencies, purchased soon after the district went into service in mid-1976. Of particular interest to SamTrans maintenance personnel, and through them, Kernen has been chasing down parts for an outdated automatic transmission found in the old buses. Few parts houses supply those parts, Kernen said, so that's where he has to go for them. But that's only one example on a long list, he noted.

Most of the SamTrans budget money every year goes for new buses, passenger shelters, all kinds of auxiliary equipment, and employee salaries. Officials say that with new buses being ordered this year and hoped-for deliveries within the next two years, the entire SamTrans fleet will be late-model buses built since 1975, all diesel-powered and from only a very few manufacturers.

Standardization has been the goal, along with its reduced costs for parts and services. The district inherited eight different types of buses of all ages when it took over the city transit systems in 1976.

What Kernen sees as "the obvious wave of the future" is consortium buying, or joining with other transit districts to buy standard items they all use, to get a better volume price.

SamTrans last year joined in one consortium, set up by the Regional Transportation Agency to buy batteries, oil filters, seals and wheel bearings. The consortium is working on fuel now, Kernen said.

Samuel Chandler

Let us pause to salute the San Francisco Public Library as it marks its 100th year of service.

A century of good works, that is the record of the San Francisco Public Library; 100 years of helping people get along in the world; of helping the rich man, poor man, beggarman, chief; of assisting day laborers as well as captains of industry; of serving children and housewives, and the doctor, lawyer, merchant and even the thief. Surely the San Francisco Public Library deserves the approbation of San Franciscans and all Californians.

Speaking of libraries, Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote, "Consider what you have in the smallest chosen library. A company of the wisest and wittiest men that could be picked out of all civil countries, in a thousand years, have set in best order the results of their learning and wisdom."

The San Francisco Public Library is not a small collection. Indeed, it holds more than a million and a half books by the wisest and wittiest men and women who have ever lived.

Here is a special collection of the works of California authors and of regional artists and musicians and, in the Schmulowitz Collection, the wit and humor of the world.

Here is the headquarters of the Bay Area Reference Center, providing information on every conceivable subject to the people of Northern California, as well as the residents of San Francisco.

A short time ago Alex Drier of the National Broadcasting Company wrote, "Today's public libraries are much more than books alone. They are beehives of activity . . . busy humming market places of ideas where the fields of interest are limitless as the span of man's consciousness; a veritable treasure chest of facts and follies; a kind of intellectual service station."

The San Francisco Public Library is that kind of an institution. It provides for its patrons special collections of science fiction and fantasy, of films, slides, maps and charts. It offers the San Francisco people hundreds of periodical and newspaper titles. It presents exhibits, lectures and workshops. Nearly all of its 27 branches maintain story hours and film shows and stock phonograph records.

And then there are the books: thousands of novels for enjoyable reading, rows and rows of reference books, rooms full of children's literature and picture books, local histories, science books, philosophies and texts. Truly the San Francisco Public Library is a great institution.

Let it not be thought, however, that the San Francisco Public Library is without faults. Some of the buildings are old, many parts of the collections need to be updated. Some of the non-book services that it offers are years behind those found in other Bay Area libraries.

Furthermore, it suffers from the strictures of a civil service system that has been slow to change. Nevertheless, its directors and its governing board have a desire to correct the institution's faults.

In spite of Proposition 13, they should be given the funds to make the necessary changes and to perpetuate the library's tradition of service. How San Francisco treats its public library may be the test of the caliber of life in a city known for its sophistication.

Kindergarten registration

Parents of San Mateo City School District children who will attend district kindergarten classes next fall can register them April 23 to 27 at district elementary schools.

Children are eligible for kindergarten in September if they will be 5 years old on or before Dec. 1, 1979.
